Weather for Ohio—Fair, cooler to night; Saturday fair.

The man who has to push the mower can't see much beauty in Marion's wide, velvety lawns just now.

The evangelist has gone and the mayor is now able to enjoy a peaceful night's sleep.

Do you suppose lemonade or cock-tails will be the beverage at that Cedar Point legislative reunion?

If every other crop fails, the output of candidates this fall is bound to be plentiful.

The Marion baseball team has been consistently losing ever since the fight against Sunday games ceased.

The editor of the "Arizona Kicker" never had a more strenuous time than the publisher up in McClure, Ohio, who is assaulted every time a news item appears in his paper.

Pete, the White House bull dog, tried to remove a section of a telegraph line from a leg. For that he has been taken to Sagamore Hill and never again will be permitted to enjoy the companionship of legislators and cabinet members. Vale Pete!

Right at this season of the year, the uptown section of Marion, with phonographs and music boxes calling attention to numerous places of amusement, is filled with a medley of sounds that reminds one of the old-fashioned street fair.

Marion county agriculturists are inclined to doubt the authenticity of the Maud Muller incident. They say that if the summer in question was anything like the one this year, Maud would have found it necessary to wear rubber boots and carry an umbrella while doing her hay raking stunt.

This nicely regulated drainage system of ours gave residents of the West End another opportunity to go swimming, Thursday night. Unfortunately, the deluge this time came at such a late hour that people living in that part of the city were unable to put their temporary bathing beach in use.

Many a town remains on the map for years and is never noticed until it becomes a scene of a disastrous railroad wreck.—Toledo Blade.

Yes, but a tornado can put some "push" into even the dullest place in short order.—Dayton Journal.

Or hobnobbing up as birthplace.—Ohio Sun.

And a good baseball team would bring to life the ancient city of Babylon.

Political Talk

Senator Dick appeals to members of the Republican state central committee to table the Taft indorsement resolution when it comes before the committee next Tuesday. When the committee reply that their constituents demand the adoption of the resolution, the senator tells them not to represent their constituents in this matter, but to stand by him. In other words, the senatorial machine again comes out openly against the overwhelming majority of the Republicans of Ohio.

So far as Ohio sentiment goes, so far as Ohio's vote in next year's national convention is concerned, it does not appear that the fate of the Taft resolution at the hands of the state central committee is of any great importance. Here in Ohio everybody knows that the state is heart and soul for Taft. Even if the Foraker-Dick machine survives a few months more, no machinations on its part could prevent the election of a Taft delegation in Ohio.

The senators cannot be blind to these facts. Their hope is to impair the Taft strength in other states, where the Ohio situation is not clearly understood perhaps, by heralding it abroad that the Ohio state committee refused to indorse the Ohio candidate. It is a rather foxy scheme, designed to help the reactionary enemies for President Roosevelt wrest party control from him and those who believe in him.

The issue which the state central committee must face next Tuesday is plain and direct. Each committeeman must take his stand with the machine and against the people or with the people and against the machine. We cannot doubt that the Taft resolution will be adopted by a wide margin.—Ohio State Journal.

The meeting of the State Republican central committee, to be held in Columbus next Tuesday, will be watched with interest by people all over the country. On the result of this meeting undoubtedly depends the naming of the next Republican candidate for the presidency.

The following is a press dispatch sent out from Washington, showing the general belief to be that Taft will get the Ohio indorsement without any trouble:

Washington, July 27.—According to reports received by Secretary Taft's people here the Republican state committee of Ohio, when it meets on July 30, will be controlled by the Taft people.

They will have twelve of the twenty-one votes on every proposition they want to put through. The others may trail in with the tried and true Taft people on some propositions but not on the crucial one, that of indorsing Foraker for another term. According to the Taft people, that will be the real test, because they believe all Foraker is fighting for now is to save his seat in the senate. He is willing to do it by having an indorsement of himself hitched to an indorsement of Taft for the presidency.

The Taft people claim to have wrested the first, second, third, fourth and fifth districts from the control of Senators Foraker and Dick, who last fall controlled fourteen of the twenty-one members of the committee and the delegates to the state convention in the ratio of more than 2 to 1.

An organized campaign is being made against Foraker by the Taft people. They intend putting every candidate for a legislative convention upon a stack of bibles and make them swear to oppose Foraker before they will give him the least support. They are not going to ask him to support any particular candidate, but merely declare that he will, under no conditions, vote for Foraker. The Taft people here believe they can win both the presidential and senatorial fights, therefore they are going out of their way to put Foraker out of the running.

It is believed they will ultimately unite upon Charles P. Taft for the senate, or in the event Secretary Taft does not attain the presidency send him to the upper chamber until his ambition to be a chief justice can be gratified.

DICK IS BUSY.

Akron, Ohio, July 27.—Senator Dick was busy Thursday lining up the Foraker supporters. He talked over the telephone with Senator Foraker in Cincinnati this afternoon and later with Foraker lieutenants in Zanesville, Columbus and other places.

Secretary John R. Malloy of the Republican state executive committee came to Akron from Cleveland by trolley arriving at a late hour and went direct to the senator's home, where the two were closeted for some time.

Dick will say nothing regarding the possibility of a resolution for the indorsement of the war secretary being introduced at the meeting of the Republican state central committee next Tuesday, or regarding the possibility of its being defeated in case it is introduced.

VOLIVA MAY BE ARRESTED FOR MISUSING THE MAILS.

Chicago, July 27.—Alleged misuse of the United States mails by Wilbur Glenn Voliva for the distribution of offensive vituperation of his enemies in Zion City, precipitated an investigation by the postal authorities Friday and arrest threatens the wearer of the mantle of John Alexander Dowd.

The investigation was begun at noon, when complaint was made to Postoffice Inspector Stuart that Voliva and his aides were using the mails to circulate a pamphlet assailing the Rev. Charles F. Parham and his associates in the war for control of Zion.

A copy of the offensive document speedily was placed in the hands of Inspector Stuart and the machinery of the government was set in motion. Parham, in the document issued by Voliva, is referred to as "the depraved culture" who came to Zion a year ago, "looking for prey." Moral accusations made against the evangelist, who was recently arrested in San Antonio, Tex., are discussed in Voliva's circular.

FORAKER IS FOR HUGHES

Is Stated Senator Will Favor New York Man For President

Washington, July 27.—It is stated that whatever complexion the Ohio state central committee may assume on Tuesday, Senator Foraker, already assured of a re-election to the federal senate, will ignore the committee's action.

He will henceforth work on national lines for the nomination of Mr. Hughes for the presidency whether the state convention shall formally instruct its delegation for Mr. Taft or otherwise. On the floor of the national convention it is Mr. Foraker's design, backed by the southern delegations, finally to swing his state over to Hughes. This blow he will aim directly at Mr. Roosevelt and the future Roosevelt control of the Republican party.

For weeks past there has been much quiet talk of Mr. Hughes in Ohio. But so intent has been the public on the conflict of national and local issues involved in the candidacy of Taft that the shifting of Foraker's plans toward Hughes, once his own election to the senate should be assured, comes as a surprise.

BOAT ROCKER GETS LESSON

Young Woman Boxes His Ears and Knocks Him in River

Port Jervis, N. Y., July 27.—Miss Fredericks, of Philadelphia, is a boarder at a farmhouse down the Delaware valley. Mr. Percy Springer, of Trenton, N. J., is a guest at the same place. He took Miss Fredericks boating on the Delaware river yesterday.

When out in midstream he commenced rocking the boat. Miss Fredericks objected to this and said: "Stop that; do you wish to upset us?"

"I thought I would scare you," Springer answered and continued his dangerous sport. Miss Fredericks steadied herself and managed to crawl to where the young man was and gave him a box on the ears with such force as to cause him to lose his balance and fall overboard. Springer yelled for help, and the young woman backed the boat near enough for him to grasp the gunwales. She rowed him to shore, until the water was up to his waist, and then, taking an oar, told him to loosen his hold and swim or wade to shore.

Endorsement of Taft Is Probable. Columbus, O., July 26.—A partial poll of the various republican state committeemen made Thursday shows that the Taft forces have by far the best of it. Fifteen districts out of 21 were communicated with. In nine of these the state committeemen were for Taft and gave assurances that they would vote in favor of a resolution endorsing his candidacy. One committeeman "thought he might vote for Taft." Five refused to commit themselves either way. Not one of the 15 said he would oppose Taft, or would support Dick or Foraker.
